1. Introduction and Objectives of the Conference

The geopolitical shock and the consequences following from the Russian invasion in Ukraine are also influencing security and democracy development in three key regions: Charting Ukraine's and Moldovan's Future in European Union, conscious Nordic-Baltic security policies to becoming NATO members and global & regional influence on Mediterranean security environment. We will discuss the role of CSOs and different stakeholders in achieving peace and the importance of intercultural dialogue in healing divides and reconciling societies. Key foreign and security policy issues plus development aid questions will be discussed mostly from the perspective of the African, Euro-Mediterranean region, Northern and Eastern parts of Europe.

Security & Civil Society Conference

Main Goal: Explore the impact of development aid on European security and discuss scenarios for achieving peace and security in regional conflicts through international cooperation. The conference focuses on translating political promises into action, sharing lessons learned, and highlighting best practices for local and international participants.

The conference is an opportunity to reaffirm the significance of the work of the European Union development aid, NATO, OSCE and its member states for promoting peace on the continent and achieving a safer, greener, socially sustainable and digitally integrated community.

This important three-day event will gather development aid organisations, regional networks of practitioners, distinguished policymakers, civil society organisations, youth, analysts, politicians, experts, development cooperation actors, researchers, governmental institutions and community leaders from Europe, Middle East/ North Africa / Central and West Africa and beyond to discuss critical issues surrounding development cooperation, humanitarian aid, existing crises and community resilience.

At this conference, the DAD (Development Aid Declaration) will be finalised and approved, together with networking plans, which will be submitted to the European Commission, International Institutions, international and governmental organizations, media and various of thematic networks who is working on achievement of peace, security, democracy, rule of law and support of CSOs in Build Resilient Societies.

The conference, organized by Sillamäe Society for Child Welfare (Estonia), Peace Child Estonia, Green Habito (Finland), and EuroMeduc (Greece) networks, aims to bring development cooperation experts, civil society organisations, international donors, governmental bodies, youth networks, and security experts to engage in high-level dialogue on "The impact and effectiveness of development cooperation on European & Global security in times of turbulence."

Security and Civil Society Conference:

- As a place of networking, the conference offers rich opportunities to meet peers from across Europe, the Euro-Mediterranean region and beyond — to exchange ideas, forge partnerships and build lasting cooperation networks.

Security and Civil Society Conference 2025

- As a platform for cooperation, it emphasises cross-sectoral collaboration — between governments, NGOs, donors, academia and the private sector — in order to co-create action plans and the “Development Cooperation & Humanitarian Aid Declaration”.
- As a forum for debate, the conference tackles urgent questions: how can development cooperation strengthen European and Global security in times of turbulence? How can civil society and local communities respond to hybrid threats, aid challenges and democratic shocks? Through interactive sessions and world-café style working groups, participants will deliberate strategies, share best practices, and propose concrete next steps.

Join us to connect, cooperate and contribute to shaping resilient societies and responsive development agendas for the future.

The conference is co-financed by the European Union Cohesion Policy Fund, Estonian National Foundation of Civil Society, British Council, Nordic Council of Ministers office in Estonia, Green Habito and EuroMeduc Networks.

2. Programme format and main themes

The conference will feature key note speeches, high-level panel discussions, practical skills workshops, study visits, a round table, and World Café working groups, culminating in the development of the “Development Cooperation & Humanitarian Aid Declaration.” This declaration will outline how societies can adapt to emerging global challenges while advancing effective development cooperation, humanitarian response, and community resilience.

Participants are expected to share experiences, highlight perspectives on the “art of the possible,” and deliver targets and action ideas for implementation at local, national, and international levels.

Conference main themes:

- Global challenges and their implications for Estonia, Europe, and the international community.
- Development policy and humanitarian assistance: needs, challenges and expectations.
- The future of international cooperation in turbulent times: possible scenarios
- The role of local governments and civil society organizations in building resilient communities.

Key topics include development cooperation policy implementation, effective and coordinated responses to security (Russian aggression), humanitarian and development challenges, Building Democratic and Community Resilience, Advancing the 2030 Agenda, Exploring new approaches to democratic governance, digital participation, and citizen security.

11.00 – 12.30 I Panel discussion with experts, delegates and interested members of the public on “Development and aid policy in 2025: needs, challenges and expectations”

The European development policy fosters sustainable development and stability in developing countries, with the ultimate goal of eradicating extreme poverty. Development assistance is one of the pillars of the EU's external action, alongside foreign, security, and trade policies. In December 2021, the European Commission unveiled an ambitious Global Gateway investment programme for the period 2021-2027, through which the EU institutions, together with Member States, aim to develop digital technologies, green energy and clean transport networks, improve health and education systems, and promote research around the world, and in particular in developing countries. Along with the EU, there are many other governmental institutions like Norwegian Agency for Development Cooperation, Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation, the United Nations programs and of course USA government who are providing the biggest development aid assistance in the world. The development aid policy in 2025 has been impacted from recent changes in the global geopolitics as the USA government has paused all US foreign assistance funded by or through the State Department and US Agency for International Development (USAID) and many rescue programs have been impacted. The Brutal Russian war in Ukraine has brought instability and chaos. Let's discuss the needs, challenges and future expectations of the stakeholders and actors from the global perspective.

- Representative of EC Representation in Estonia (TBA)

12.30 – 13.00 Working groups

13.00 – 14.00 Lunch (at the restaurant)

14.00 – 15.30 II Panel discussion with experts, delegates and interested members of public on

“Global challenges and its impact on Estonia and the World (climate change, education, social security, extremism, human rights, democracy, economic growth, humanitarian aid)

The global crisis changed the economic order, deepening the challenges developing countries will face in the decades ahead. Joblessness is making it harder for families to improve their living standards.

Security and Civil Society Conference 2025

Growing energy needs are exacerbating the threat of climate change. Rapid population growth is overwhelming urban infrastructures. Water scarcity and inadequate food security are endangering the lives of millions. Humanitarian crises around the world leaving millions without access to food, water, shelter, and healthcare. These emergencies strain global aid systems and highlight deep inequalities in protection and support for vulnerable populations. Such strains also heighten the potential for conflict, as existing geopolitical tensions between global powers had a big impact on all aspects of our life.

Moderator: Triin Roos. Executive Director of Estonian Roundtable for Development Cooperation (Estonia)

- Aysegul Bayar Hildgen, Civil Society Policy Analyst, Development Co-operation Research Unit, Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (France)

16.00 – 16.15 Coffee break

16.15 – 17.30 III Panel discussion with experts, delegates and interested members of public on “The future of development cooperation in turbulent times: possible scenarios”

This panel discussion will provide participants and development actors a framework to understand, track and cope with the fast-changing and increasingly complex global context for development in terms of a multipolar divided world where global challenges are left unchecked. It looks back on the main drivers that have led us this far, and summarizes crucial challenges for actors in development. A world in which environmental challenges are addressed but at a large social cost. It looks back at what triggered the strong eco-oriented global development policy and summarizes what this has meant for the organisation of and challenges for development cooperation or a world in which a diversity of actors challenges the economic and political establishment and experiments with alternatives.
